THE COIN OF CIRCULATION

A Chinese New Year Ritual for Inviting Wealth Flow

This ritual marks the home as a place where abundance is allowed to move.
Not held in fear. Not chased in urgency.
But circulated with trust.

We place coins not to hoard wealth,
but to teach the home how to receive and release with ease.
When circulation is clean, multiplication follows.

I. PREPARING THE FIELD

Before placing the coins, the home must breathe.
Abundance cannot move through spaces that are compressed by hoarding, fear, or unfinished clearing.

Gently declutter areas that feel heavy or hidden:
• closets and storage
• drawers and corners
• under beds and sinks
• spaces you avoid opening

You are not purging. You are opening pathways.
Clear only what feels ready. Flow will complete the rest.

II. PLACING THE COINS

After cleaning and clearing, place one coin (a quarter is perfect) in every room of your home.

Place them quietly, without display:
• Entryway (receiving)
• Kitchen (nourishment)
• Bedroom (worth & rest)
• Bathroom (release)
• Living space (circulation)
• Workspace (creation)
• Closet or storage (identity)
• Any forgotten room

As you place each coin, breathe and say silently:
This space is safe for abundance to move.

III. THE WAITING

Leave the coins in place for one to three weeks after the New Year begins.
Do not clean or rearrange during this time unless truly necessary.

This pause allows the home to acclimate to receiving without interruption.
Observe shifts gently. Let the home show you where flow is returning.

IV. RETURNING THE CIRCULATION

When the waiting period is complete, collect the coins in a small bowl.
Thank the home quietly.

Deposit the coins together into your bank or wallet.
This completes the circuit: home → body → world → return.

Say softly:
What moves returns multiplied.
What is welcomed continues to flow.